MR. MARSH'S MYSTIFIERS.

THE DISS DEBARS' TRIAL BEGUN.

THE GENERAL'S REAL WIFE TARES THE STAND

TO THE SURPRISE OF NEARLY EVERYBODY. The fortunes of Ann O'Delia Salomon, alias Editha L. Diss Debar, are being followed in the higher tribunal with no less interest than they attracted in the Tombs Police Court. The room in which Judge Gildersieeve presides over General Sessions, Part II., was crowded yesterday when the case for the people was crowded yesterday when the case for the people against the medium and her "General," Joseph II. Diss Debar, was opened and the first evidence pre-sented. In the audience were many of the old fa-miliar faces that were seen day after day at the procedings before Justice Kilbreth. The jury box was satisfactorily filled early in the forenoon, a ruling by Judge Gildersleeve that a man's religious belief or his lack of it should not be a prominent element in deciding his eligibility to try a Spiritualist materially expediting the work of choosing jurors. William C. Root, who occupied the foreman's seat, was excused by mutual consent. Jacob A. Lewis, a Hebrew, who deals in clothing at No. 212 Madison-st., was accepted as Mr. Root's successor, and William G. Kelleher, produce merchant, of No. 119 East Forty-sixth-st., was elected to the fifth seat. All the jurymen took the oath.

Assistant District-Attorney Dos Passos made the opening speech for the prosecution. He reviewed all the outstanding points of the case, anticipated the stand that would be taken by the defence, and indicated that John L. O'Sullivan. ex-Minister to Portugal might be implicated in the charge of conspiracy before all was over. O'Sullivan, who was in court, sitting near by Madame Diss Debar, was apparently somewhat surprised. lady smiled and notided to him sympathetically. THE FIRST WITNESS A SURPRISE.

Assistant District Attorney Davis acted as examiner. He called first for Mrs. Diss Debar. The medium started from her seat, but the General pulled her back, and the true wearer of the name walked quietly past her and took her place on the Mrs. Diss Debar is a quiet, plain old lady. a strong contrast (and she is not by any means the loser by the comparison) to the General's sham spouse. That she was called was a genuine surprise for every body; but although the defence was willing to concede, and would probably have conceded, that Anne is not the wife of her puted husband, the District-Attorney wants to emphasize their profession of that relationship to Mr. Marsh as one of the false presences by which they gained his confidence. Mrs. Diss Debar said that her first name was Amelia, and that she lived in Philadelphia, and had borne three children to Diss Debar, whom she identified with outstretched finger She had been divorced from him.

John D. Townsend began to cross-examine her. asked her if her children were married. "Yes," she Townsend wanted to hear their names, but the poor little woman said she didn't want their names brought into the case, and became so timid and ner-yous that the runaway husband asked his counsel to let her off, and he desisted.

The afternoon was occupied with amiable Mr. Marsh's story, which is, for the defendants, so damagingly straighforward and ingenuous. A fairy tale recited by a child could not be told with more believing unction or more misdirected earnestness. Mr. Marsh's simple, child-like faith in the powers of his fireside medium seems to be too firm to be ever disturbed. Like the Sleeper Awakened in "The Arabian Nights" story, he refuses to rub the dreams out of his opened eyes.

MR. MARSH'S TESTIMONY.

He said he had been introduced to Madame in 1884 by John L. O'Sullivan. The long, detailed nature of the examination of Mr. Marsh will be understood The long, detailed nature when it is stated that at 5 o'clock, the hour of adjournment, the course of the narrative had not yet brought the conspiring couple into No. 166 Madisonbrought the conspiring couple into No. 166 Madisonave, and nothing in regard to the transfer of that property or its mortgage, the vital points in the indictment, and been brought out. The time was all taken up in recounting the experiments which led to that, by making Mr. Marsh an unquestioning advirer of the medium and her abilities. Mr. Marsh with a sheet of paper showed the court how the spook pictures again, and illustrated the slare-writing.

Judge Gudersleeve-Do I understand you to say that when these pictures came you felt the smell of the paint? Mr. Marsh-Yes, sir.

Mr. Marsh-Yes, sir.

Judgo Gildersleeve-Before you saw a manifestation?

Mr. Marsh-Yes, sir.

Mr. Davis-Up to this time, that is to say before she came to your house, had you paid Madama for any of her manifestations? Mr. Marsh-I gave her money from time to time.

THE JASPER COMMITTEE READY TO REPORT. The contest in the Board of Education over the election of Superintendent Jasper will be settled at the meeting to-day, when the special committee appointed to investigate the charges against Mr. Jasper, which completed its work last week, will report, Most of the commissioners who were seen yesterday did not regard the results brought out by the investisioner Lummis, a member of the committee, said that the charges, so far as he had been able to judge, did not reflect so much on the superintendent as on the Board itself. They related mainly to existing defects of the system, for which Mr. Jasper was not responsible. He believed the result of the investigation would not be bad, as it would call attention to the source of the complaints. Half a dozen candidates are menned for Mr. Jasper's place, but his opponents seem to have been unable to unife upon any one. Commis-sioner Galloway is reported to have said that he would be willing to pay such a man as he would like to see superintendent of the schools a salary of $20,000 a year. Money was not an object to be considered if a man of the proper qualifications could be obtained.

PROFESSOR MUELLER WAS DESPERATE. Four complainants appeared yesterday morning at Jefferson Market Court to prosecute Professor Edward Mueller, alias A. Strokevis Vittrain, a teacher of music. They were his sister-in-law, Mrs. Minnie Cauvin, of No. 142 Madison-st., August Marshall, a wine dealer, Nicholas Humbert, a hatter, and A. G. Rave, a druggist of Richsville, L. I. One complaint of forgery and three charges of larceny were made against the professor, whose only plea was "I was Detective Sergeant Murray, of Chief Inspector

SALE OF VICE-PRESIDENT CLINTON'S HOME.

Much interest was shown at the Real Estate Exchange yesterday in the sale by Richard V. Harnett of the Van Renseclaor place at New-Hamburg-on-the Hudson, in the town of Poughkeepste. It comprises a house and other buildings and 300 acres of ground with a frontage of one mile on the Hudson. It was once the homestead of Vice-President George Clinton, from whom it passed to Governor De Witt Clinton, who sold it to General Tallmadge, also Governor of the State of New-York, from whom it passed to the wife of Philip Van Rensselaer. The next owner was Jacob Campbell, president of the Pacific Bank, who sold it to August Pottier, of the firm of Pottier &

VICE-PRESIDENT O'DONOHUE RESIGNS. The Board of Managers of the Coffee Exchange on Monday evening accepted the resignation of Vice President J. J. O'Donohue. In his letter of resignation he said that at a recent meeting of the managers he had been subjected to arbitrary and ungentlemanty treat-President W. H. Crossman, who called him to order and completely shut him out of a debate on a question before the meeting. On the question of his resignation being accepted there was a tie vote in the board, and the president gave a casting vote in favor of its acceptance. Friends of the president say that Mr. O'Donobue has been trying to "run" the business of the Exchange, and it was stated yesterday that on the occasion referred to in the letter of resignation, be was frequently called to order by the president, but took no notice of his ruilngs.

RUSSELL SAGE RUY A SUMMER HOME. Russell Sage has lately bought a summer home at Lawrence, Long Island. It is a spacious house, a few minutes' drive from the railroad station, and is known as "Cedarcroft." It adjoins Cedarourst, Mr. ased the place last summer and last week decided to buy it. It is his purpose to put it in thorough this morning, and received injuries that will cause order and refurnish it throughout. The preximity of Cedarereft to the city will enable Mr. Sage to attend to his business here every day during the summer. He will remove to his new place with his family about June 20.

TWO MURDERERS NEARER HANGING. ADVERSE DECISIONS IN THE APPEALS OF "DAN"

LYONS AND MRS. CIGNARAL". Chiara Cignarale, in whose case the Court of Appeals rendered an opinion yesterday sustaining the convic-tion, was accused of the murder of her husband, Antonio Cignarale, on October 20, 1886. After the trial of the case had begun in February, 1887, sho pleaded gulty to murder in the second degree. The plea was accepted, but a low weeks later the woman, under the advice of friends, insisted upon withdrawing the plea and pleaded "not guilty." The second trial resulted in her conviction of murder in the first degree. She was sentenced to be hanged, but the date has long since passed and she will be sentenced again in a few days. Mrs. Cignarale has been ill for several weeks. and when she was told yesterday of the decision she completely broke down.

Daniel Lyons, who will also be hanged under the decision of the Court of Appeals yesterday, was tried last September for killing Joseph J. Quinn on July 5, 1887. He also received the news. An attempt will be made to get a new trial, on the ground of newly-discovered evidence, which tends to show that Quinn struck Lyons in the face immediately before the latter shot him. Should this fail, there is no hope for Lyons unless the Governor interferes. When seen by a Tribune reporter in the Tombs yeaterday, he said he was disappointed that he did not get a new trial, but if he must die, he would do so like a Christian.

SIMPLE SOLUTION OF THE SUBWAY PROBLEM.
